INTRODUCTION TO SUBSTANTIAL ACQUISITION AND TAKEOVER

Equity shares give ownership rights of a company. More the number of shares you hold, the higher stake you will have in the entity. Meaning, you will have a stronger say or control over the affairs and management of the business. However, minority shareholders (i.e. who do not exercise control over a company), might be at the risk of being suppressed.

Contrary to their position as one of the owners of the company, majority shareholders may decide or act in a way that may be hostile to their interests. As a minority shareholder, your right may thus be suppressed in case you want the management to be unchanged. Therefore, it is vital to ensure that the minority interest is not oppressed by the majority, to ensure which, SEBI has established several measures and regulations. SEBI Substantial Acquisition of Shares and Takeovers Regulations, 2011 (SAST Regulations 2011) is one such measure.

SEBI SUBSTANTIAL ACQUISITION OF SHARES AND TAKEOVERS REGULATIONS, 2011

Mergers and acquisitions (M&A) are well-known ways of restructuring a company. If the majority shareholders of a company unanimously agree to merge with another entity, it would significantly impact the company and the shareholders, which may or may not be good. As the regulator of the capital markets in the country, SEBI is, therefore, responsible to ensure that the process is fair and the interest of all the shareholders is protected.

That is why SEBI introduced the Substantial Acquisitions of Shares and Takeover Regulations, 2011, which regulates the direct and indirect:

- Acquisition of shares and
- Voting rights or
- Control

In excess of 25% in/over a target company that is publicly listed. Here, acquisition means to buy shares in the company, which also gives the acquirer voting rights in the target entity.

GENERAL RULE OF ACQUISITION OF SHARES IN A TARGET COMPANY

The general rule is that an acquirer or persons in cohort are prevented from buying additional shares if that gives them voting rights equal to or in excess of 25% in the target company. However, the rule has an exception. That is, the acquirer or persons in cohort can acquire additional shares only on making an open offer publicly.

Meaning, as per SEBI Substantial Acquisition of Shares and Takeovers Regulations, any person or persons having a shared objective looking to buy/acquire shares or control the voting rights of the target company, such that their combined interest is more than 25%, are mandated to make a public announcement of an open offer. Note that the title of an 'officer' or a 'director' of a target company doesn't give control over the target company to the personnel holding such positions.

WHAT IS AN OPEN OFFER?

As per the Substantial Acquisition of Shares and Takeovers Regulations, 2011, an open offer is an 'exit opportunity' offered by an acquirer of shares to the existing shareholders of the target company so that they can sell their stock positions and exit the company should the developments not interest them. The offer price at which the existing shareholders can sell their stocks is ascertained by a person appointed by SEBI. This allows a fair procedure. Besides, an open offer also discloses significant developments that would happen in the company in the near future to the existing shareholders.

WHAT IS A TRIGGER POINT?

A trigger point is when the acquirer of shares is mandated to make an open offer via a public announcement. As per the Substantial Acquisition of Shares and Takeovers Regulations 2011, trigger point kicks in when an acquirer, who is an existing shareholder:

- Holds 25% voting rights on owning equity shares in a company and wants to buy over 5% more voting rights in a financial year OR
- Holds less than 25% shares or voting rights in the target company and wants to buy more such that their total shareholding exceeds 25% interest in the target company

SIGNIFICANCE OF THE SUBSTANTIAL ACQUISITION OF SHARES AND TAKEOVERS REGULATIONS, 2011

As mentioned before, shares give ownership rights to the shareholders, resulting in a significant impact on the management of the business and shareholders' interest. Ergo, it is vital to ensure that shareholders' interest is protected and also that there is smooth corporate governance in an entity. SAST Regulations, 2011 is one such measure put in place by SEBI.

Since many companies are cash-strapped due to the pandemic and the lockdown triggered by it, the amendment to the SAST Regulations, 2020 temporarily relaxes the regulatory requirements for investors to invest in a company. This, in turn, allows easier inflow of funds in the target company and supports its operations in difficult times like now. However, the amendment to SEBI Substantial Acquisition of Shares and Takeovers Regulations, 2011 is only applicable during the current financial year, that is, until 31st March 2021.
